Dr. Phil McGraw

mean more than you can imagine. Our conversations across the endless hours on everything from religion to Emma the pup are a great refuge. Thanks for always having my back on every front.

If ever there was a crew to have by your side it is the one with me day in and day out. Terri Wood, Carla Pennington, Kandi Amelon and Angie Kraus, you have all been relentlessly committed to making Dr. Phil the TV show live up to our internal challenge of creating the best hour on television and the highest and best use of the medium. There isn't anything that can't be accomplished with the "Four Tops" in your corner! Then there is the world's premier publicist and bad boy himself, Chandler Hayes. You are my eyes and ears, and I couldn't walk the walk without you. Thanks for believing so deeply in what we do.

A huge thank you also to Carolyn Reidy, Dominick Anfusio and the Simon & Schuster/Free Press group for always believing in the importance of my message. Your passion in making sure that the words contained herein make it into every pair of hands in America is deeply appreciated.

To Jan Miller and Shannon Miser-Marven, my agents at Dupree/Miller, your passion for my message over the years has been continually uplifting. You two are my literary "feminine side," and you make my books so much better because of your hard and tireless work, not to mention making them be on time! Your entire team, including Alia Brinkman, Jennifer Holder, Annabelle Baxter and Nena Madonia with their all important research and organization made this book possible, made it fun and ensured its relevance.

Thank you to Leah Furman, Michele Bender and Bill Kelley, who brought their unique talents to this project. Your involvement was essential, and because of your dedication and work, this book is improved. You were true professionals in every sense of the word, and for that I am grateful.
