Stimulus Gives Wind A Choice

Written by Marsha Johnston

Sunday, 08 March 2009

Gene Beck, president of Orange, California-based solar leasing specialist EnviroTech Financial Inc., is less enthusiastic about the positive real-world impact of the American Recovery and Reinvestment Plan on the solar industry.

The legislation is not a total loss for renewables, however, as it has provided wind developers with a choice for getting a return on their investment. "The wind guys were always stuck with the production tax credit (PTC). Under the new act, they can take the PTC and earn over 10 years or take the ITC \(investment tax credit\) just like in solar and get 30%." he said recently.

The change eliminates the risk of a wind farm losing its PTC income by having to shut down at any time over 10 years. Beck does not think all wind farms will automatically choose to take their ITC money and run. "Some projects would still take the PTC, depending on their hurdle rate, and the size of the turbines, their production rate," he said.

The exact history of how these ugg bailey button boots came about is lost in the mists of time. As is known to us, ugg classic tall boots have been worn by Australians since European settlers first arrived on the huge island continent and discovered that their cold feet could best be warmed by sheepskin footwear. Whoever the first person was to don a pair of classic ugg boots, he or she started an Aussie fashion trend that would be perpetually enduring. Ugg classic short are so fashionable, when you have one of them, you will be a star among your friends. Do not miss the chance. ## Hi, We're EnviroWonk

Yeah, OK, we can be the change that we want to see in the world. But unless powerful people in powerful positions want to be that change as well, nothing's going to change.

So now, finally, there's a place where you can go for news and analysis of politics from an environmental perspective.
